

AXISCADES fortifies their leadership position in Aerospace Engineering - wins Airbus ODC 2.0 contract

Thursday, 1st December, Bengaluru

Airbus has signed a strategic agreement with AXISCADES to provide a range of critical engineering services for product development and manufacturing support for all Airbus aircraft programmes. As part of the ODC 2.0 contract AXISCADES will provide services for Fuselage, Wings (Repair), Defense & Space and PAG.

This is the second time that AXISCADES has won the ODC contract for Fuselage engineering services through a competitive bidding process after the previous contract successfully completed its term.

AXISCADES emerged as top choice among other contenders because of the unique value – Technical and Cost competency combination – they were able to demonstrate for Airbus.

Speaking on the occasion, Mr. Sudhakar GANDE, Vice-Chairman, AXISCADES said “Winning of Airbus ODC contract with enhanced scope covering Fuselage & Wings (repair) for AXISCADES marks a significant milestone in the development of Engineering services capabilities for our organisation. We are delighted to collaborate with Airbus for Engineering activities covering Airbus divisions across Europe. This demonstrates our continued commitment to fully support our partner’s Engineering needs with a responsive operating model at a time when industry is looking at digital designs services to radically transform the cost and speed of production.”
